Where are the St. Pierre and Miquelon Islands

and how do you get there?

Detroit to Halifax, to St. Pierre, to Miquelon...

...1,400 miles ,
more or less

Getting from Halifax to St. Pierre and then on to Miquelon with all our “stuff” – about 500 pounds!

From Halifax to St. Pierre

And from St. Pierre to Miquelon 3 went by small plane and 3 by ferry.

The antenna farm...

Left...a Spider beam was used mainly for 15M and 20 M

Lower left...finished Spider and Sigma V

Two phased delta loops were used pointing to Europe...K8GL designed

The mast was 38 ft tall and supported our 160M inverted V, the 30M/15M inverted V and the Yankee Clipper special 80M “C”. The shorter mast had a 40M inverted V .

Lower left you can see 3 phased switch-able 10M vertical array designed on the spot by K8GL

The 40M “killer” antenna by K8MM and K8GL. Two phased Butternut 80/40M verticals, endfire, switched between EU & NA.
Eu signals 24 hours a day!

The contest operation...

Wires, wires, wires...it took a day to set everything up. Four stations all networked, three constant runners and one multiplier S&P station made for lots of activity and QSOs.

Life on and in Miquelon...

The town square...

One of two grocery stores...

The post office...

Wind power a la Miquelon...

Dining and celebrating..

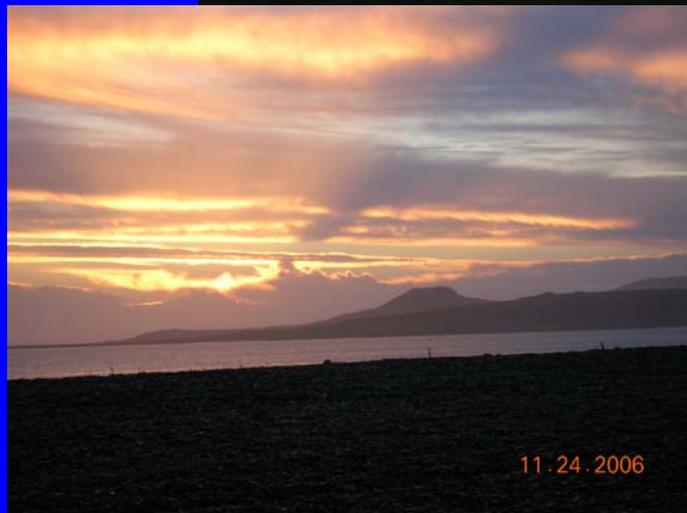

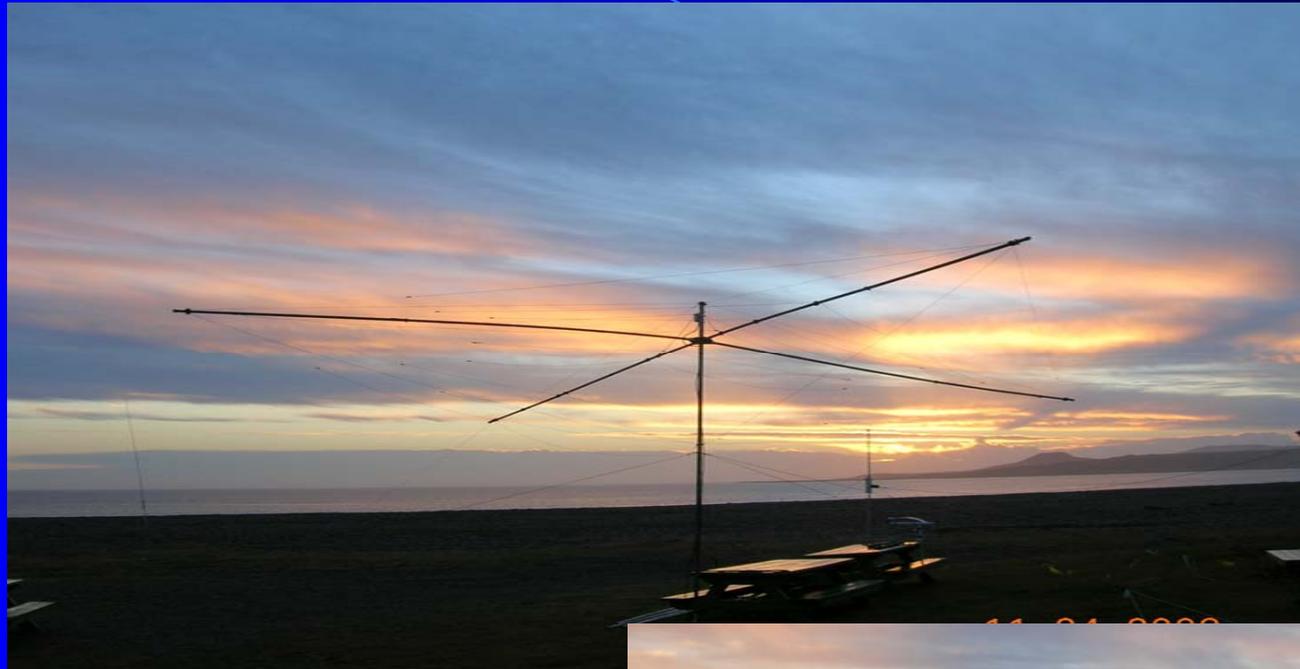

We ate at “Café Brian” for several of our evening and lunch meals. Great food and thanks to W8IQ’s French, we could all know “before hand” what we were eating!

This was our “celebration” dinner and “cigars”.

The end of the story...almost

On St Pierre, AC8W rocks!

Putting up the Buddipole
on the fire escape

Handing out lighthouses from the Hotel Robert!

St. Pierre

Victoria exists on the Islands

Yes, on St. Pierre Greg finds the shop of his dreams!

Scary picture and scary times...

A terrorist on our flight...Mo-madd "the Duck"!!!

The End!
